

Webinar Series: Using the Tribal Forest Protection Act to Advance Tribal Climate Adaptation Priorities

This webinar series is designed to facilitate greater collaboration between Tribal Nations and associated National Forests. Specifically, these sessions will help interested Tribal and National Forest staff understand the Tribal Forest Protection Act (TFPA), and how TFPA projects can help advance shared priorities for climate change adaptation. The TFPA allows federally recognized tribes to propose projects to be conducted on Forest Service land to reduce threats to tribal lands and values. Please join us for this two-part series!

Webinar #1: Background Information on Climate Adaptation and the TFPA

Tues, September 13th
10 am-12 pm EST

Tribes and Forest Service Evolving Toward Co-Stewardship:
Alicia Bell-Sheetter (US Forest Service)

Tribal Climate Adaptation Menu:
Jerry Jondreau (Dynamite Hill Farms)

TFPA Process and Requirements:
Jim Durglo (Intertribal Timber Council),
Susan Johnson and Glen van Zandt (US Forest Service)

TFPA Grants and Agreements:
Tory Hahka (US Forest Service)

Webinar #2: Past Successes from the TFPA

Thurs, September 15th
10 am-12 pm EST

A panel of speakers sharing their experiences and lessons learned, with invited representatives from:

- Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe
- Chippewa National Forest
- Mt. Baker-Snoqualmie National Forest
- Cibola National Forest
- Pueblo of Acoma
- Yakama Nation
- Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest

Register here: <https://tinyurl.com/TFPAwebinars>

Contact: Stephen Handler, USDA Forest Service and NIACS, stephen.handler@usda.gov